Spanish Monarchy Overthrown Today

LIBERALS PLAN MOVE TO FORCE FIGHT ON VETO

House To Vote On Overriding Governor In Next Fortnight

Springfield, Ill., Apr. 14.—(AP)—An attempt to override the veto of Governor Louis L. Emmerson on the O'Grady-McDermott prohibition law repeal bill will be made by the House of Representatives in two weeks.

An immediate attempt to gain a roll call to pass the bill over the Governor's head was made today by Thomas J. O'Grady, Democrat, Chicago, one of the sponsors of the bill, but on motion of Michael L. Igoe, Democrat leader in the House, the roll call was postponed for two weeks. This action came immediately after the reading of the Governor's message to the House.

Then Leroy Green, Republican, of Rockford, suggested an immediate caucus of "all liberals who voted for this bill" to determine what should be done. "After having heard Scott McDevide's speech over the name of the Governor of Illinois I think it is high time we gave full consideration to the problem."

The liberals will meet in caucus at noon tomorrow, their meeting today being impossible because of the scheduled meeting of a congressional reapportionment committee.

Severe Attack
Attacking the Chief Executive in severe language, Representative O'Grady branded his veto message as "ridiculous and conflicting." "He has taken his words from the Anti-Saloon League," O'Grady declared. I ask an immediate roll call on this measure and I solicit the aid of every clear thinking member of this House.

O'Grady reiterated on the floor of the House his previous charges that the Governor had attempted to use his influence in the Senate to defeat the bill. "I was not surprised at the veto," he said. "I visited the Governor at his office only a few days ago and I was never greeted more cordially by a state official in my life."

Col. Ira Reeves, organizer of the Crusaders, an Anti-Prohibitionist organization, following a conference with other "wet" leaders, declared that if passage of the bill over the Governor's veto proves to be impossible, that another effort would be made by putting a referendum clause in the repealer.

Governor Emmerson's message of veto left one door open for such an attempt, as he said that he would have signed the O'Grady-McDermott bill if it had contained a provision for submission of the question of repeal to a general referendum. The bill, calling for the wiping out of the state prohibition act and the state's search and seizure law, passed the House of the legislature by a vote of 91 to 56 and the Senate, 26 to 24.

To override the veto 102 votes would be needed in the House and 34 in the Senate.
The Governor's action evoked a storm of praise and criticism. The W. C. T. U. national headquarters hailed it with joy, declaring it "reminds the police they have full power to stop the bootlegger." On the other hand, Bernard W. Snow, Chairman of the Cook County Republican Committee, said the veto was a "direct refusal to obey the orders of a half million majority of Illinois voters" he referred to a referendum vote held at the last general election in November of 1930.

Among the reasons assigned by the governor for his veto was that the O'Grady-McDermott bill attempted to "nullify the provisions of the 18th Amendment."
The first move of the "wets" as retaliation for the veto was predicted by Representative O'Grady this morning. He said he was prepared to ask the House to take over the investigation that has been proposed by Howard Doyle, Democrat, Decatur, into the handling of gas tax funds by Garrett De Forrest Kinney, Director of Finance. Doyle, in a resolution introduced some time ago, charged that Kinney had not accounted for interest in money in the fund.

House Like Beehive.
The floor of the House was like a beehive this morning while returning representatives gathered in groups to discuss the veto of the Chief Executive. Little attention was paid proceedings except when O'Grady sounded the first cry of the battle he said he intends to wage against the Governor through the remainder of the session.

All eyes were turned on the caucus of "wets" tomorrow. Debates on what the future course of the liberals (Continued on Page 2)

REPORT BLUMER HELD PRISONER IN LAKE HOTEL Wisconsin Governor Is Taking Hand In Kidnaping Case

Chicago, Apr. 14.—(AP)—Sheriff Myron West of Monroe, Wis., had another clue today concerning the whereabouts of Fred J. Blumer, kidnapped brewer of Monroe, who was being held for $100,000 ransom.

An anonymous letter, received yesterday by Pat Roche, Chief Investigator of the State's Attorney's office, said that Blumer was being held prisoner in a summer hotel, known as "Hermansen's Place," on Lake Geneva, near Elkhorn, Wis.

Although West received the letter, he made no move to follow it up since the family requested that the search for Blumer be dropped.

Monroe, Wis., Apr. 14.—(UP)—Governor Phillip F. LaFollette conferred today with agents investigating the disappearance of Fred C. Blumer, Monroe brewer, reported kidnapped last Thursday for $100,000 ransom.

Federal authorities also kept in touch with developments, but said they preferred to remain inactive at present. Gov. LaFollette indicated he would assign state authorities to the case.

Archie E. Wells, Blumer's partner, who received a telephoned demand for $150,000 ransom after Blumer disappeared, also was missing today, supposedly assisting Mrs. Blumer, and her daughter, Marion, in secret negotiations with the kidnappers.

Whether any further communication had been received from the abductors, said from a source believed to be a hoax, asking $100,000, could not be learned.

Blumer is believed to be unharmed and in the hands of a beer syndicate which was said to have suffered by the competition of "Golden Glow," Blumer's near beer. How near-beer could compete with an alcoholic product was not made clear. Stories have been told, however, of the Blumer beer being shipped to Rockford, "needed," and retransported to Chicago.

Waukegan, Ill., April 14.—(AP)—Mrs. Helen Pauling Donnelley of Lake Forest, Ill., was granted a divorce today from Thorne Donnelley, her husband, by Judge Reuben H. Donnelley, millionaire Chicago publisher.

Judge Ralph Dady granted the decree in Lake county Circuit Court. Donnelley did not contest the suit, and by an agreement stipulated in court he would provide Mrs. Donnelley an income of $30,000 a year for life, regardless of whether she remarries. In addition he turned over to her his Lake Forest home, household goods and automobiles and promised to maintain for her memberships in the Onwentsia Hunt & Country Club and Shoreacres Country Club.

Mrs. Donnelley charged her husband deserted her in March 1929, about a month after the death of his father. They were married Nov. 17, 1917. Donnelley makes his residence at the Chicago Racquet Club.

Sheriff Summoned To Nelson Twice

The actions of a Negro, who carefully extracted the shells from a heavy revolver and then as carefully cleaned the weapon, attracted the attention of employees in the Northwestern yards at Nelson yesterday afternoon. It was pay day and there was fear of holdups. Sheriff Fred Richardson was notified about 6:30 and went to the yards where a search was conducted, but he learned the armed Negro had been seen to board an east-bound freight train. It was reported.

Last evening about 9 o'clock Sheriff Richardson was again summoned to Nelson, when a large sedan in which three men were said to be riding, was observed parked in the vicinity of the coal chutes. When a railroad employe approached the car it sped away and shots were said to have been fired. The car and its occupants had departed when the Sheriff and his deputies arrived.

FEAR REBELS IN NICARAGUA HAVE KILLED MARINES

The Sandino Insurrectionists Have Renewed Their Combat

Washington, April 14.—(AP)—Four Americans today were reported killed in and around Puerto Cabezas, Nicaragua, and three reported missing as a result of attacks by insurgents in the past 48 hours.

The State Department today announced that orders had been dispatched to the Commander of the gunboat Asheville to land forces to protect 300 American citizens at Puerto Cabezas, Nicaragua, which is endangered by an advance of Nicaraguan insurgents.

The Asheville arrived at Puerto Cabezas last night. The American residents of that port, mostly employees of the Standard Fruit & Steamship Company, and the Bragman's Bluff Lumber Company, today were reported concentrated on the water front or aboard the steamer Cegala.

Navy Department reports said the insurgents threatening Puerto Cabezas are much stronger than at first believed.

They are of the same insurgent forces that have been operating in Northwestern Nicaragua under Sandino, Blandon and Pedron. These forces apparently are moving in large bodies across northern Nicaragua converging on Puerto Cabezas.

BULLETIN
Balboa, Canal Zone, April 14.—(UP)—The Standard Fruit & Steamship Company said today that its radio station near Bragman's Bluff had been silent for many hours and fear was expressed that it had been captured by insurgents. The company officials said they had been fearing an attack for weeks.

Messages received here said two United States Marines—Lieut. Darrah and Sergeant Taylor—and their commands had been wiped out by insurgents at Logtown.

Managua, Nicaragua, April 14.—(UP)—United States Marines and sailors, landed at Puerto Cabezas from the cruiser Asheville, were believed in control of the coastal region today after an outbreak by insurgents which was reported to have cost a heavy toll of lives.

Except for the slaying of Capt. Harlan Peiffer of Coxsack, N. Y., and a National Guardsman, official confirmation of a high casualty toll was lacking, but private messages said several more Marine officers had been killed in that district.

An unconfirmed message to the Standard Fruit Company in the Canal Zone said 500 bandits had killed 25 persons, including 10 Marines at Bragman's Bluff, Nicaragua.

Conflicting Reports
Corporal Morales of the Guardia was wounded in the course of two brief clashes between insurrectionists and guardsmen under Lieut. Darrah. The Darrah detachment was reported fighting a group of about 125 rebels who were well armed with rifles and machine guns. The guardsmen were cut off by the bandits, but a Marine plane from Managua dropped food to them Sunday.

Darrah also was said to have established telephone communication with Puerto Cabezas, where the reinforcements were landed. Reports from the east coast of the bandit attack could not be confirmed, although official advices said the Guardia clashes with the insurrectionists occurred in Mosstown, near Logtown. The bandits were under Pedro Blandon, who was believed to have been forced to abandon plans to attack Puerto Cabezas due to arrival of the Asheville. The insurrectionists, who had been ordered by Augusto Sandino to observe a truce after the Managua earthquake—have been concentrating on the Puerto Cabezas region for some weeks. Prior to the earthquake it was reported they planned a strong attack on Marines and Guardsmen in the region.

Women Jurors Show Interest In Inquisition

Women members of the April grand jury are very enthusiastic in conducting their investigations of the many criminal cases which are being presented by State's Attorney Mark C. Keller. The inquisitorial body entered upon its duties yesterday afternoon and reconvened this morning to consider other cases. It was apparent that the body would be in session at least through Wednesday.

"This is one of the most attentive and active grand juries that I have ever had the pleasure of working with," State's Attorney Keller stated when the jury adjourned last evening after a heavy afternoon's work. "The ladies take an interest in the investigations and ask questions of the witnesses and appear to thoroughly enjoy the privilege."

Women also serve on the petit jury which will report Monday, April 27 in the Circuit Court. But one panel has been drawn for the term, which is composed of the following:

JOHN A. HILL KNOWN IN DIXON, DIED YESTERDAY

"Happy Jack", Friend Of C. R. Walgreen, Is Victim Stroke

John A. Hill, for 30 years manager of the Stockyards Inn and the Sadie and Siroin club of Chicago, known here because of his visits at C. R. Walgreen's estate, Hazelwood, died yesterday. He was known to bootleggers and English lords as "Happy Jack." He was 60 years old.

Thursday he was on the job, laughing at the talk of gentlemen and chatting with politicians, when he suffered a stroke. Funeral services will be held tomorrow at the chapel at 63rd street and Harvard avenue. Among his friends he numbered sportsmen, politicians, cattlemen, and laborers. Sir Thomas Lipton sat long over one of Jack's steaks and talked racing, cattle and philosophy. Mrs. Calvin Coolidge knew him and wrote him a letter after a short visit, a letter he saved and showed to his friends.

Fifteen years ago he was commissioned by the government to reorganize the hotels in the national parks. Now they are famous wherever tourists gather. Jack was said to have known more cattlemen than any man at the yards. He is survived by his widow, Minnie, and a son, Jesse.

Ashton Men Are Taken In Custody

Iva Sisk and Charles Black of Ashton were arrested yesterday afternoon on charges of using an automobile belonging to Harold Stevens of Ashton without the consent of the owner. They were taken before Justice W. F. Hawthorne and their cases continued until Friday. Black furnished bonds in the sum of $500 for the continuance but Sisk who could not furnish bond was brought to the county jail in this city. The two men were alleged to have taken the automobile belonging to Stevens Sunday evening without his consent, driving to Princeton.

REPUBLIC ESTABLISHED AS KING QUITS THRONE; BLOODLESS REVOLUTION

Alfonso Bows To Will Of Citizens, Shown In Sunday Poll

BULLETIN.
Madrid, April 14.—(UP)—The provisional government headed by Alcala Zamora proclaimed a republic throughout Spain tonight.
It was the second proclamation of a Spanish republic, the first having been proclaimed by the republicans last December, at which time the monarchy took the upper hand. Today's proclamation, ironically was the same as that issued last December, merely changing the date. The same group comprises the new government.

The republic was proclaimed at 5:30 P. M. at the Madrid city hall, over which the republican flag floated.

Alcala Zamora and five colleagues were tried only three weeks ago on a charge of signing the same manifesto and were sentenced to six months' imprisonment. The sentences were remitted. Six other signers avoided trial by escaping abroad.

Republican manifestations increased in intensity in Madrid and throughout Spain as evening drew near. Efforts to complete the transition of power were speeded up, although time was consumed by arrangements for procedure, such as rendering the proper military honors to Alfonso, preparing the royal train, etc.

Socialist headquarters ordered its branches in the provinces to preserve order and obey the authorities, countering previous instructions sent secretly to all Republican-Socialist organizations, advising them to prepare to revolt if the King refused to renounce the throne.

Madrid, April 14.—(UP)—The ancient throne of Spain fell today to join the other royal houses that have gone down in the past-war debacle, and a republican government was formed to rule the country.

Alfonso XIII, born a king and head of the House of Bourbon, acceded to the demands of the triumphant republican leaders that he get out—not merely abdicate in favor of his son, but resign and let republicans rule ending 981 years of monarchical government in Spain.

Niceto Alcala Zamora, republican leader and popular choice for president, formed a cabinet and prepared for the formal transfer of power from the monarchy to the republic before sunset.

Given Safe Conduct
The King was granted a safe conduct from Spain and was expected to leave as soon as possible with the royal family. All the princes and princesses were in Madrid, with the exception of one son, who is absent at a military academy.

The republican flag was raised over the post office and other public buildings. Republics were proclaimed in Barcelona and Seville and the republican flag was hoisted there, in Santander, and other cities.
Demonstrations of rejoicing were held in cities throughout Spain. Fair order was maintained, although there were riotous scenes in some places. Two were killed at Dalarosa and three injured in Huelva.

The triumph of the republicans was so swift and bloodless that the country could hardly realize what momentous events were taking place until they had become an accomplished fact.

The overturn started Sunday, when municipal elections were held throughout Spain. The republicans carried almost every city. When the extent of the victory was realized yesterday, Alcala Zamora called on the King to resign. The cabinet, headed by Premier Juan B. Aznar, advised the ruler that he could not remain in office, and counseled him to accede to the republican demands.

AN EARLIER REPORT
Madrid, April 14.—(UP)—King Alfonso XIII has resigned, Premier Jan B. Aznar announced today.

Spain, one of the few remaining strongholds of monarchy, will become a republic.

Niceto Alcala Zamora, leader of the country's republicans and popular choice for president, drafted a republican government in conference with his aides in Madrid.

Republicans already had been proclaimed in Barcelona and Seville, where great scenes of rejoicing took place as the people burned portraits of the King and paraded in the streets.

Confirmation of the King's resignation came after a morning of momentous events, during which history was made and the House of Bourbon removed from the throne. The King, it was understood, gave

ABDICATES

KING ALFONSO

Last of the Bourbons, who abdicated his throne at 6 o'clock this evening (Spanish time), ending 981 years of monarchical government in Spain.

The monarch, who was born a King and had reigned in the ancient Spanish Capitol more than a quarter of a century, this afternoon bowed to the sweeping demands for a republic that his subjects voiced last Sunday, and stepped out.

Niceto Alcala Zamora, Republican leader, who not so many weeks ago was in jail for his activities, is provisional president.

Although the king's abdication has been an unquestioned outcome of the political crisis for the past few days, it was not until the last moment that he stepped from power.

At 4:45 P. M. Alcala Zamora had found it necessary to send an ultimatum to the King's ministers saying that unless a republic were formally accepted within an hour, the republicans would not be responsible for the consequences.

The hour went by and then just fifteen minutes after the ultimatum had expired the abdication of the King became a reality. The announcement was made exactly at 6 o'clock after a final session with the cabinet in the royal palace.

A republican government, with Alcala Zamora as president, took charge immediately.

up the throne in favor of a republic, instead of merely removing himself by abdicating in favor of his son.

Named Conditions
That he be permitted to leave Spain with appropriate honors, be permitted time to arrange his personal belongings, and be given full military honors on his departure.

Official sources understood the royal family would proceed to Paris tonight by a special train.

The King struggled to the last to save his throne by peaceful means but he capitulated when he realized that to defy the republicans would throw the country into civil war and bloodshed.

The republicans, who carried almost every city of Spain in Sunday's municipal elections, were in the saddle, and they gave the King to understand there could be no compromise.

At first, the King offered to abdicate in favor of the Prince of Asturias, heir apparent to the throne.

Alcala Zamora replied that the republicans would not accept anything less than complete renunciation of power.

A meeting of the revolutionary cabinet was held last night at which monarchist representatives made a plea for a two months' truce.

To Avoid Bloodshed
The republican leaders replied that they could not grant it and had their forces ready to act. Apparently the King decided to avoid bloodshed and accepted the republican terms.

The end came with dramatic suddenness this morning when Alcala Zamora announced that the King would resign at 3 p. m. As the news spread, a tremendous crowd assembled in front of the royal palace, where heavy detachments of guards were on duty to protect the royal family.

Alcala Zamora telephoned Alexander Lerroux and Manuel Azana, republicans, who have been hiding in Madrid, that they could now walk the streets openly. Both proceeded to the house of Miguel Maura, where the revolutionary government was being established and participated in the deliberations.

WERE TRAPPED IN SHAFT BY FIRE IN NIGHT

Chicago Sanitary Dist. Tunnel Scene of Unexplained Blaze

(BULLETIN)
Chicago, Apr. 14.—(AP)—The body of Capt. James F. O'Neill, eleventh victim of the flames and gas in the blazing west side tunnel, was brought out from a hole bored through 22nd Street at 1:20 p. m. today.

After nine hours drilling the firemen penetrated the ceiling of the tunnel. At that point about 40 feet beneath the thoroughfare. Firemen William J. Gillespie and Edward Cough descended a ladder and immediately called for stretchers. A few moments later the Fire Captains body was hauled out and borne away.

Chicago, April 14.—(AP)—Eleven firemen and six workmen emerged alive at 9 a. m. today from the blazing Sanitary District tunnel that had been a tomb for ten of their fellows during the night.

Led by division Fire Marshal Patrick Pierce, the survivors crawled unaided to the surface through the shaft that had been an avenue to death for the ten firemen and tunnel workers trapped in lethal gas and unbearable heat.

They had saved their lives through 12 hours' imprisonment by sealing themselves in safety air chambers at one end of the new sewage disposal tunnel.

Heat that melted the rubber suit of a diver and fumes that choked and blinded the daring rescue squads had forestalled thorough search of the bore until a new smoke-ejecting device rushed here from Kenosha, Wis., was applied to the air shaft.

Its double-barreled pipes sucked the smoke from the chamber 50 feet underground and forced compressed air down, clearing a path to safety for the entombed men. Once on the surface, they were rushed to St. Anthony's hospital where 28 other firemen already were patients, suffering from injuries and the effects of gas. One fireman, James O'Neill, was still missing, Fire Marshal Corrigan said.

It was a dramatic moment as the first little group of workmen rose to the street.

Firemen were pumping away, watching the shaft opening ten feet, ready to attack any flames that reached the surface and threatened the sheds at the mouth. Suddenly the elevator bell rang. The cage ran up and the grimy faces of the first handful appeared.

A tremendous shout went up, and firemen and rescuers surged to the entrance of the pit. Again the cage dropped, brought up another gang, then a third time to hoist the last load.

Was Horrible Night
John Wyrten, one of the tunnel workers, told of the horrible night in the underground prison. They had sought refuge in the eastern air chamber when the fire drove them back from the shaft last night.

There in the little 22 feet square room they spent the night, some playing, singing at times, some even sleeping despite the stress.

Through the long hours of waiting for rescue they had been supplied constantly with fresh air pumped down from the surface, and the smoke which had seeped in at first was forced out. But toward nine o'clock this morning the air supply failed, and the prisoners who knew they must make a break for the shaft or die of suffocation began the bulkhead.

Making ready, holding their breaths as long as they could, they pushed open the door and dashed for the shaft, now clearing of gas. They rang for the elevator cage and shot up to daylight and safety.

These survivors were certain all in their bulkhead had escaped and that none had taken refuge in the western safety chamber.

The smoke ejector is the invention of Peter T. Pirsch, a Kenosha contractor, who hastened to complete his first model at 3 a. m. today and sped here with his son to give the machine its baptismal test. Billows of smoke poured from the tunnel mouth as its pumps began functioning and fresh, cool air was driven into the flaming tube.

Rescuers worked at a desperate pace all through the night and this morning in the hope that the missing men might still be found alive behind the bulkhead of an air chamber at one end of the tunnel. So intense was the heat in the tunnel, however, that the men were forced to stop their search for half an hour, after which they renewed it with increased vigor.

The coroner, firemen and police all joined hands in the rescue attempts, backed by orders from Mayor (Continued on Page 2)

PROOF OF MAN'S VANITY FOUND IN PERIOD STYLES

By MARY KNIGHT

United Press Staff Correspondent
Paris, April 11 (UP)—Ample proof of the vanity of man and his figure are found in the skin tight styles alternating through different periods.

They must have been the bane of the bow-legged man's existence as were the short skirts to the knock kneed flapper.

When men's neck and shoulders were swathed in lace and ruffs that recalled those of Queen Elizabeth's days, the nether garments were the scantiest. Their high cut-away coats revealed their manly figures in severe silhouette and dared them to indulge in overeating.

As the political turmoil increased fashionable attire grew more and more eccentric and multifarious, until republican institutions triumphed, and the women of France began to clothe themselves like those of Greece and Rome both in style and scantiness. They discarded costly materials, and shivered through the winter months clad in a few yards of muslin bunched themselves up in summer with fluffy furs.

What could be more modern today than that ancient custom?

Men wore a combination of antique and romantic costume invented by the painted David, which was finished off with Hungarian boots. The gorgeous and stately dress of the courts of Louis XIV and Louis XV had disappeared with the old regime. Piles of false hair, artificial flowers, feathers, and jewelry reached its height on ladies' heads about 1780, and on kaleidoscope of fashion is showing us glimpses today of the same cycle on a modified scale when Worth returns the aigrette to the evening coiffure of 1821, fastened to the hair with a gorgeous jeweled pin or clip.

Cycles of alternate luxury and simplicity have distinguished all ages, but this one in which we are now living works harder for simplicity than any of the former ones did to achieve luxury.

Fashions change more quickly each decade, a fact due in many ways to the increased facilities of communication. The triumph of democracy is shown by their universal adoption by all classes. Will the time ever come when the most advantageous and artistic costumes for men and women will be found and kept? The probabilities are all against it.

The Saxon philosopher Rudolf Hermann Lotz, who knew and expressed the first psychology of clothes, said that we prolong the consciousness of our personal existence into any foreign body brought into relationship with the surfaces of our own body, so that we feel ourselves grow taller with our high headgear, move with our fluttering laces and ribbons, and derive vigor from the feeling of resistance arising from a tight band or belt.

We all are more alive to a new sensation than to one which has been long in the field of consciousness. In order for clothes to yield the maximum of pleasure they must not resemble their brothers and sisters in shape, color or cut, too familiar—which means that we shall always have to have, not only new clothes, but new kinds of clothes. Which brings us to the door marked "No Admittance" of one of the greatest Parisian couturiers, and a few words mumbled in French is the "Open Sesame" that admits us behind the scenes and shows us how the sacred shears of fashion cut history from bolts of silk and satin.

O. E. S. Birthday Party Will Be a Gala Event Friday

Arrangements for the birthday party to be given by Dorothy Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, April 17th and which will include a supper, a brief stated meeting and initiation ceremony, are almost completed. The officers have been making an endless number of flowers to decorate the tables and the main lodge room and the committee in charge of this work expects to have it completed and installed by Friday morning. The ladies from the Eastern Star Old People's Home at Rockford, who are to be the guests of honor and who will initiate the candidates, will come to Dixon in special buses and there will be at least 30 of them.

The picnic supper is to start promptly at 6:30 and Dorothy Chapter will furnish the meat, coffee, and ice cream and the members are asked to bring covered dishes of vegetables, salad or cake and their own dishes and sandwiches. Visitors, who are not members, are not expected to bring either food or dishes. The guests of honor have notified the Worthy Matron, Mrs. Nellie Gearhart, that they will furnish the music for the entire evening, however, some special birthday songs and songs to these guests have been arranged for by members of Dorothy Chapter.

From all reports this will, without doubt, be the largest and perhaps one of the most interesting meetings that Dorothy Chapter has held this season. The dining room is beautifully decorated and the tables will be arranged in the form of a star with each point decorated with the flowers of the color appropriate to that point. The officers have devoted a great deal of time and effort in order to make this meeting a great success and without doubt the guests of honor from Rockford, as well as the Most Worthy Grand Officer of the United States and the Grand Officers of Illinois will be delighted with their reception and entertainment in Dixon.

Woman's Club Had Happy Meeting on Saturday Afternoon

On Saturday the Dixon Woman's Club convened in its regular bi-monthly meeting at the Christian church. During the business session Miss Bess Decker announced that one hundred ten dozen cookies had been sent to the Disabled Veterans' Hospital at Elgin and gratefully acknowledged the cooperation of the club members in this project.

Miss Edna Burnham presented a plan whereby the Community Service department is hoping to establish a municipal Christmas tree for Dixon.

The program chairman of the day, Mrs. L. McGinnis introduced Miss Avis Cromwell of this city who delighted everyone with two organ numbers. Miss Avis has appeared before the club before and each time her work is greatly enjoyed.

Due to business reorganization Miss Dorothy Larson who was scheduled to give the afternoon's program was substituted by Miss Nelson from the Alfred Peats Co. Chicago, who spoke on "The History of Wall Papers."

This lecture included a comprehensive summary of wall decoration from the primitive cave man to the present day period which includes all types of houses and apartments.

Miss Nelson had a chart of wall papers and countless samples of hangings and colorful drapes which she complemented to bring about desirable effects for different rooms, according to their use, location or requirements of the family.

The various types of wall paper used by Nathaniel Hawthorne, Longfellow, Roosevelt, Lincoln, and Mrs. Coolidge brought forth subdued exclamations from the audience.

Miss Nelson had a keen sense of humor, a fine sense of practicality, exceptional ability in expressing her ideas, which combination tended to give her listeners an animated desire to apply her many delightful suggestions in their individual homes.

A large number of members and guests were present to hear this discussion so timely for this particular season of the year.

Refreshments were served by Mesdames Rorick, Burtfield, Dwyer, Morris, Potter, Prince, Russell, Rusch, Sanborn, Swarthout and Miss Scott.

Refreshments were then served by the committee Gladys Rosbrook, Marian Burkett and Anna Marie Mulkins. Games and music occupied the remainder of the evening.

SERVING THIS JUICE A JOY TO THE BUSY HOUSEWIFE

Fresh, Tree-Ripened Orange Juice, Extracted and Frozen Solid at the Groves, Needs Only to Be Defrosted to Provide a Delicious Breakfast Beverage

ALLURING IN ITS APPEAL—Fresh orange juice for breakfast, extracted at the groves in Florida from the tree-ripened fruit, frozen solid and delivered to the home with the morning milk, all ready to serve for breakfast. This juice may be kept in the refrigerator just as milk is kept.

FIRST it was a problem of oranges or bananas or other fresh fruits for breakfast. Then the housewife turned her attention to fruit juices as a less troublesome form in which to serve that necessary part of the morning meal. But this entailed the tedious task of squeezing and seeding the citrus fruits.

Now comes word that, fresh orange juice may be had for breakfast without any of the former difficulties of preparing or serving. In Tampa, Florida, there is a new industry operating to relieve the housewife of all these burdens. The oranges are rushed from the grove and all culls immediately discarded; the choice fruit is then peeled and squeezed by machinery, partly frozen under vacuum to prevent oxidation, sealed in paraffined cartons and finally frozen solid in a "hardening" room which is kept at a temperature of 10 degrees below zero. The quick freezing process captures all the tree-freshness of the oranges and preserves a maximum of the vitamin C content.

The cartons in half-pints, pints and quarts will be shipped to cities throughout the country and delivered by a national dairy concern along with the morning milk. The juice will be delivered at the doorstep still frozen and may be kept in the home refrigerator just as long as one keeps milk.

The combination sounds alluring—milk and orange juice delivered daily, fresh for breakfast.

How to Make Your Suits Wear Longer

OUR method of pressing—the modern Valetor method—actually does make suits wear longer. Valetor pressing brings back the trim tailored lines of the garment. "Bagginess" at the knees and elbows disappears. Stubborn wrinkles vanish. The nap of the fabric is raised; the lustre of new cloth is restored.

And—Valetor pressing kills germs, moth eggs, and removes perspiration odors. Each thread of the cloth is given new life and soft dried the Valetor way. The suit comes back to you as fresh as new.

HERO-WORSHIP.
This nation seems to have a mania for hero-worship. Ordinarily this is a perfectly harmless trait, and sometimes it does a good deal of good. But now and then something happens to make a thinking man wish that we could let up just a little on our desire to put somebody up on a pedestal.

Just as present young Bryan Untiedt of Towner, Col., is the goat.

Bryan, you know, is the 13-year-old youngster who conducted himself so coolly and courageously when the school bus in which he and other children were riding became stalled in a snow drift, so that five of the children were frozen to death.

According to all accounts, Bryan was a sturdy chap on that tragic occasion. He did what he could to keep smaller children warm, and he behaved in every way like a boy whose parents could be pretty proud of him.

But Bryan right now is put through an ordeal that could turn the head of a grown man let alone a small boy.

First they had him in front of a talking picture camera. Then he began getting letters and presents from people all over the country. And in a day or so he is to be taken to Washington and introduced to President Hoover.

Now all of this is perfectly natural, of course—but it's terribly unjust to the boy himself.

Being a celebrity in America today, even if it doesn't last very long, is not exactly an enviable experience. The admiring mob creates a lot of pitfalls for its hero to step into, and it takes a pretty level-headed man to avoid them all.

It's all going to be rather tough on Bryan.

The chances are that he will come through it unspoiled, and go back to the normal privacy of boyhood to which every lad is entitled.

But it won't be our doing if he does. It will be because he is unusually sensible and sure-footed, and not because we adults have shown that we have any idea of how juvenile heroes should be treated.

By lionizing him as we are doing, we are taking a chance on ruining a fine, upstanding American boy—who happens, incidentally, to be right at the most impressionable age possible.

We have no right at all to take that chance. The kindest thing we could do to this lad would be to let him alone—and, at the same time, to give him a chance to forget about the horrible tragedy through which he has passed.

THE NEW ERA.
"The greatest of all censors—the American public—is beginning to vote thumbs down on the 'hard-boiled' realism in literature and on the stage which marked the post-war period," says Will H. Hays, movie czar, in his report to his board of directors.

When the motion picture world takes note of this, we are in a way to rid ourselves of what we have demanded as a people, but which we decry as individuals who have come up from another era. How and why this "thumbs down" policy has come about we do not understand, but we approve it. It takes almost a lifetime to see a full cycle in thought and habits of a people, and we could not be sure that we did not have a long way to go before we came to the turning point.

Impetus of this thumbs down policy may carry us far. When we demand a different type of pictures and plays, they will be given us. When they are given us, they will have a new influence upon the rising generation. We who have seen how deeply the pictures have influenced the youth of the picture era will look with optimism upon the result of showing a different class of pictures.

"The fact is becoming evident that the American public is growing tired not only of gangster rule, but of gangster themes in literature, on the stage and on the screen," says Mr. Hays. "I am glad to note, therefore, the decreasing importance of such themes in the production programs of 1931."

The last year saw a new record in production of great feature films based upon historical, sociological, travel, and other educational themes, says the report. More than three times as many feature pictures dealing with such subjects were made in 1930 as were made in 1929.

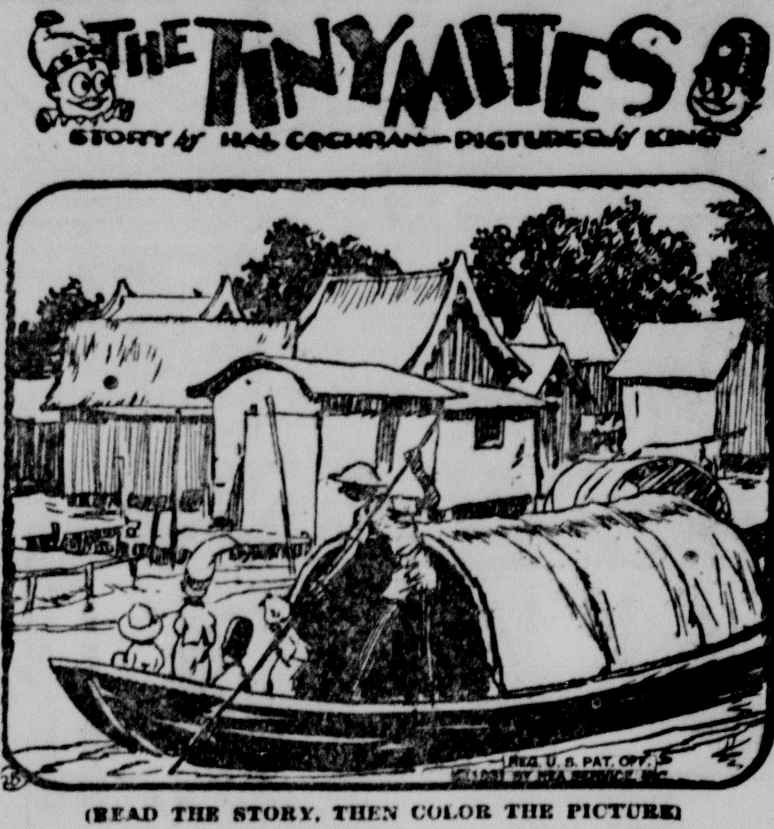

The trouble with house-cleaning time is that too many robbers think it applies to them, too.

"Those umbrellas, if you please," they would follow Clowdy's lead. So said Clowdy, "are quite Japanese. they have the little knob on top and handles of bamboo. I'll bet that I could make one now." The workman said, "I'll show you how. If you will follow what I say it's not so hard to do."

"All right," cried Clowdy. Then he hopped upon the bench. The workman dropped a handle and some pieces in a heap right in his lap. And then he showed him, bit by bit, just how to make the whole thing fit. Each part was fitted into place with just a gentle tap.

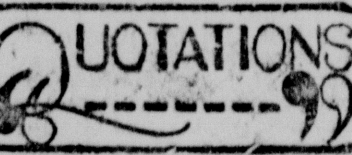

The cover then was spread out flat and Clowdy fussed around with that until he had it looking right. The until he had it looking right. The man said, "My, that's fine. You're just as clever as can be, as all your little friends can see. I think that your umbrella, lad, looks just as good as mine."

The other Tynmites then agreed that they would follow Clowdy's lead. So each one made an umbrella in no time at all. Then, when they started on their way, the workman offered them some pay. Said Clowdy, "We've had pay enough through quite a friendly call."

The Travel Man said, "We'll now go to Bangkok, where I'll show you lots of interesting things. At first we'll take a boat and ride right by a village near. It is the quaintest spot near here. See all of it you can, my lads, as right by it we will float."

They hopped aboard the boat and then were lolling in the sun again. The little village soon was reached and my, but it was queer. Upon tall stilts the houses stood. The Tynmites saw all they could. Said Clowdy, "It is pretty, but I'm glad we don't live here."

XCITEMENT RAN HIGH

... on March 17 ... at the start of the elaborate lubrication study conducted by the Contest Board of the A. A. A. on the Indianapolis Speedway. Read the dramatic details of this tremendous task

Nothing approaching this lubrication study in size and scope had ever before been attempted. Here were 13 latest model cars of prominent makes ready to start on a series of tests covering thousands of miles—tests that would shed new light on questions concerning dilution, consumption, carbon and wear. More than 4 weeks of intensive work lay ahead for the relays of drivers that would whirl these cars around the Indianapolis Speedway. Months of preparation had worked up to this climax. Drivers waited at their wheels for the word to go. Excitement ran high.

Accuracy in the results obtained is assured. The tests were conducted by the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association. Its official observers were present every minute. The results when compiled will be certified by that unbiased organization.

Early in May, cars used in this test will start on individual tours. They will visit automobile dealers from Michigan to Montana to deliver the certified results and to allow inspection. At the same time they will be gathering lubrication data on highways and city streets, under the exact conditions your car faces. Watch for these cars.

It is by such research methods that this company is able to provide you always with motor oil that meets exactly the lubrication requirements of your engine.

PEOPLE'S COLUMN

AMERICA CHAINED: EMPTY DINNER PAILS

Editor Telegraph:—The writer has just returned from a tour of inspection of business conditions. I have been satisfied for months that "big business" has so controlled the press of America that we no longer can believe any of our so called business editorial writers.

I determined to investigate to my own satisfaction with an open mind the real conditions of all classes of industrial and agricultural business. I introduced myself to strangers in all these classes, in practically every instance gained their confidence and received first handed, the viewpoints of diversified public opinion.

Space will not permit me to discuss all my findings, however, I feel it my citizenship duty to lay before my townspeople the important facts that so seriously need our immediate consideration.

The first thing I discovered was that all classes have contributed thousands to the ever growing list of unemployed and that the direct causes lay at the feet of monopoly control, resulting in unfair business practices, untruthful advertising, and ruinous competition. That the independent farmer, the wage earner, independent banker and merchant is no longer considered the direct builder of communities, but are all taken collectively to add to the already over-whelming money bags of "big business."

I discovered a mass thought developing in the minds of all classes that an upheaval against all business, all laws and all legislation is in the making, and that people have already realized that mass distribution and mass production as advocated by "big business monopoly" is largely to blame for low and starving salaries, empty dinner pails and jobless men and women.

I discovered a general disregard for the eighteenth amendment because of the result of increased crime and the fact that millions have been deliberately passed into the hands of bootleggers protected by crooked politicians who have broken faith with the people who elected them to office.

I discovered a universal cry against taxation as being unequally distributed and a most serious determination to demand immediate relief. As one farmer remarked, "We are now the victims of taxation without representation, just as surely as those people who demanded and received relief from Great Britain."

And I discovered in all towns, large and small, the terrifying cry against the direct blood sucker of all communities at the present time, "The Chain Store." Big business' weapon to reduce wages and bring the complete collapse to community life.

Five years ago you and I were told that the big chain store would broaden our trading territory, would bring thousands more to our city, and would decrease taxes and save thousands of dollars annually to our citizens.

What is all this money that they have saved us? They have come in droves only to destroy your future, your children's future. You need only half investigate to realize that the wages they pay will not permit the buying of the bare necessities. The prosperity of the farmer, the wage earner, the banker, the professional man and the merchant depends entirely on the ability of the people to pay.

Once a year they pay into our court house a personal property tax for the privilege of operating a business that has directly bid our county of cash and placed it into the very hands that are demanding that we work as slaves and peasants. Let me say right here that just as soon as big business agrees to pay back in taxes directly in our communities, a tax commensurate with the amount of business they do, and pay salaries equal to or better than independent business employees and give their time and energy in building up our rural and city life as those who made this county possible, then and then only will true Americans hail them as an asset.

For years "big business" has high pressured the American people to buy their constant offerings of stock issues in order, so they have told us, to further expand their holdings and enhance the stock holders with increased stock values and dividends.

Now the time has come to check up. Where is their stock value today? And is it not true that in practically all cases dividends are being paid largely from surpluses that have accumulated in the past from excess profit?

I wish to state that I do not now, and never have owned a dime worth of chain store stock.

For more than a year "big business" through the press has been on the defensive trying to sell the American people on the idea that depressions are inevitable that prosperity is just around the corner. And all this time they have been adding to the army of the unemployed via mergers and monopoly.

For fifty years "big business" has deliberately criticized the independent farmer and merchant for inefficiency. They have always offered the "direct to you for cash only" as the big whip to make all independents look like robbers. Now they have completely changed. Now they offer credit terms that are so ridiculous and unworkable that any school boy or girl can easily understand why their finance charges on credit accounts are excessive.

For years "big business" criticized the independent for having such an overhead operating expense and blazingly told the world that local expenses, such as newspaper advertising, rent, light, heat and charge accounts was altogether responsible for high cost values. Now they too have adopted every selling expense that the independent always has had and in addition have added so many overheads that their cost of doing business in most cases is far in excess of the independent.

They have always maintained that the consumer must pay for all ad-

THE STORY OF NICK LONGWORTH

Washington Press Correspondent, Friend of Deceased Speaker, Writes Intimately Of His Life

BY HERBERT LITTLE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, April 14.—(UP)—The czar of Russia and little girls on Texas farms talked about it for weeks, that winter of 1905-06.

And at noon, in the East Room of the White House, on February 17, 1906, burly, railroad-fighting President gave his vivacious daughter in marriage to Nicholas Longworth, a bald-headed young Congressman in a Prince Albert coat and tight pants.

Under a great, glass-paned chandelier, before a thousand leaders in official and social life, "Princess Alice" Roosevelt gave her promise to love, honor and obey.

The nation took "Nick and Alice" to its heart, and kings' ransoms came from foreign potentates, in tribute to romance. The nation paid homage even more real, by making a vogue of "Alice blue," which was prominently displayed in cigar-ettes, cloak-linings, and gowns of guests at that famous function and for years thereafter.

Alice came down the great White House staircase on the arm of Theodore Roosevelt. She wore an enveloping, amazing white gown, a wedding veil of tulle bound by a coronet of orange blossoms, and a necklace of diamonds—the groom's gift.

The groom, attended by a best man and eight ushers, was dressed conventionally—white vest, pearl grey tie, moonstone scarf pin, a single flower in the lapel of his Prince Albert, and gloves.

Cuba gave a necklace of 63 matched pearls, a gift that disgusted the President because he thought it was on his account, leading Longworth to comment:

"My first job is to start living down a noble father-in-law." A costly bracelet from the Emperor of Germany, silver vases from the Emperor of Japan, a diamond and pearl pendant from the Emperor of Austria, a Mosaic table from the King of Italy, a Mosaic from the Pope, and jewelry from the King of Spain were there. Longworth's proud home town, Cincinnati, gave a matched span of horses valued at $15,000. The Emperor of China sent a dowry chest of vertising and overhead.

I wish to say at this point that the biggest lie ever told the American people in the merchandising world is that "direct from factory to you" lie. Chain stores are absolutely no more direct to you than the independent dealer.

Thousands of direct accusations against chain stores and "big business" of untruthful advertising, snort weights, tax dodging and starving wages has been made via radio, speeches and editorials. Thousands of men and women have come to realize that our federal constitution is being violated every day by permitting the operation of monopoly and chain stores and have openly expressed themselves. And not a man or woman has been arrested and put in jail for the exposures.

Men like our much beloved late Theodore Roosevelt ably warned us as a people and a government against trusts, monopoly and "big business." We are victims of those agencies because we did not heed the warning.

How can you Mr. Farmer (the backbone of our county) expect higher prices for your grain and stock with big business, low salaries. The buying power of the consumer absolutely regulates the prosperity of any nation as is evidenced at the present time.

How can you Mr. Independent Merchant expect anything but failure if first you don't, in every instance, patronize and protect all independent business, and second if you don't fight fearlessly and openly for your own protection?

How can you Mr. Property Owner expect your property to be an asset with "big business" refusing to pay a just tax and with salaries so low that the wage earner cannot buy even the necessities.

How can you Mr. Wage Earner patronize the group that is, and has, told the world that low starving wages is efficiency?

What would be your reaction if all independents should decide next week to pay chain store salaries and adopt "big business lay-offs?"

And how can you professors and teachers in our schools shun your responsibility to teach our future citizens the truth regarding chains and monopolies? Your positions were made possible only through the independent and your jobs and salaries are just as much at stake as the factory worker who finds himself out in the cold for the reason that monopoly gained control of the factory or forced him on starvamatchless fabrics and ivory carvings.

Nicholas was calm and unruffled as he married into our equivalent of royalty, but he maintained a sentimental recollection of that day to his death.

In his ornate offices as Speaker two decades later, he had installed over his desk the great chandelier under which he was married.

A few weeks before his death, he and Alice celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of that day by summoning their friends, including as many of that original thousands as were still on the scene, to a 1906 party, in the costumes of that faraway period.

Nick wore his Prince Albert and a high, quaint collar that must have given his now heavier neck some discomfort. Alice wore her hair in pompadour all that day, at the Capitol and elsewhere, and dressed again that night in a wasp-like waist and long flaring skirt, tight around the hips and flaring out at the bottom as it dusted the floor.

This rare couple after marriage justified their reputation by pursuing their social lives as before. Their salons were the gayest, their company the best.

When Roosevelt left the White House, the jovial and jovial Taft was one of Mrs. Longworth's leading admirers. Once the President said to his aide, Archie Butt:

"Invite Alice to dinner tonight. Tell her to bring Nick and her cigarettes."

Longworth kept a close watch on the Ohio political situation, and won re-election but no advancement, every two years. In the House a young newcomer, George W. Norris, was causing trouble in Republican ranks by protesting against the despot control exercised by the Speaker, "Uncle Joe" Cannon. Longworth was one of Cannon's lieutenants, but their fight was ineffectual, and Cannon was shorn of his power.

But Longworth sought greater power and advancement was slow. He hoped for a gubernatorial or Senatorial nomination, but it never came.

Longworth was in meeting low prices and inferior quality.

And you Mr. Preacher—what have you done toward warning your people against economic destruction? You have had a significant opportunity to protect your city, your church and your county from these outside parasites. Surely you, above all others, must admit that you owe your very existence to the independent farmer, professional man, wage earner and merchant. You must surely realize that a continuation of present business conditions will reduce the budget of every church to a minimum.

Fellow citizens, look all around you—evidences abound to convince you that "big business" is the direct cause of unemployment—that the money you have been told you saved in chains has in reality caused increased taxes and empty dinner pails.

Demand from all office seekers their attitude toward your protection and demand a recall when they vote against you and your interests.

The fight is on—it has been on and will continue. There can be no compromise.

There will not be, there cannot be, a return of prosperity in this country with chain stores, monopoly control and rotten politics as they all exist today.

The Golden Rule must be observed.

PAN-AMERICAN DAY OBSERVED IN WASHINGTON

President Speaks At Meeting Of Pan-American Union

Washington, Apr. 14—(AP)—President Hoover today envisioned Western Hemisphere nations in the future as settling every major difference by the "orderly processes of conciliation and arbitration."

Leading official Washington in its celebration of the first Pan-American Day, which simultaneously was observed throughout the 21 Latin-American Republics, the Chief Executive described the common purpose of the Americas to eliminate war as major contribution to modern civilization.

He spoke before the Governing Board of the Pan-American Union, and was followed by Secretary Stimson, speaking as Chairman of the Board; Ambassador Tellez of Mexico, dean of the Washington diplomatic corps; and Ambassador Ferrara of Cuba.

By proclamation of President Hoover, flags were displayed in the Capitol as on national holidays and exercises were arranged throughout the day at the Pan-American Union building. At the opening of the American League baseball season the President was one of those to arise and salute the raising of the flags of each Western Hemisphere nation while the United States Army band was called upon to play the various national anthems.

Recalls Visit

President Hoover recalled that during his 1928 visit to eleven Latin-American countries, it became increasingly evident to him that the various nations have everything to gain by keeping in close contact with each other and by developing a spirit of cooperation having its roots in reciprocal understanding of national aims and aspirations.

"A peculiar heavy responsibility rests upon the nations of the Western Hemisphere," the Chief Executive said, "a responsibility which, at the same time, is a high privilege. Richly endowed by nature, we enjoy the great advantage of inhabiting a hemisphere free from the jealousies and antagonisms which have proved such obstacles to progress and prosperity in other sections of the world. We have developed an international system based on the principle of equality, combined with a full recognition of the obligations as well as the rights of states."

Arbitration Coming

"The American republics are today rapidly approaching the time when every major difference existing between them will be settled by the orderly process of conciliation and arbitration. x x x From the earliest period of their history, the governments of the republics of this hemisphere have been earnest advocates of the peaceful settlement of international disputes. x x x The common purpose to eliminate war and the determination to achieve peace and security represent a major contribution of the Americas to modern civilization."

Secretary Stimson asserted that Pan American Day, which President Hoover had proclaimed, was "intended to emphasize those basic principles of international service which tend to bring nations of America close to one another."

The President said in part:

Basic Question

"Although each of the republics of this hemisphere possesses problems peculiar to itself, there are certain basic questions relating to democratic progress and social betterment common to us all and in the solution of which we can be most helpful to one another. This spirit of mutual helpfulness is the cornerstone of true Pan-Americanism. The Pan-American Union not only symbolizes this spirit, but gives to it concrete expression in many practical and constructive ways."

"It is of the greatest importance that the people of the United States become better acquainted with the history, the traditions, the culture and the ideals of the other republics of America. To an increasing extent, courses on the languages, literature and history of the nations of Latin America are being offered in the educational institutions of the United States. A similar realization of the importance of becoming better acquainted with the history and development of the United States exists in the countries of Latin America. An increasing number of students from the countries to the south are being enrolled in the colleges and universities of the United States. I cannot emphasize too strongly this important aspect of inter-American relations. These cultural currents not only contribute to better international understanding, but also emphasize the essential unity of interest of the American republics."

Spreads Information

"Through the Pan-American Society and its branches established in different sections of the country, the importance and significance of the culture of the Latin-American nations are being brought home to our people."

"A peculiar heavy responsibility rests upon the nations of the Western Hemisphere; a responsibility which, at the same time, is a high privilege. Richly endowed by nature, we enjoy the great advantage of inhabiting a hemisphere free from the jealousies and antagonisms which have proved such obstacles to progress and prosperity in other sections of the world. We have developed an international system based on the principle of equality, combined with a full recognition of the obligations as well as the rights of states."

"The American republics are today rapidly approaching the time when every major difference existing between them will be settled by the orderly process of conciliation and arbitration. In this respect, the Western Hemisphere has placed an enviable record before the nations of the world. From the earliest period of their history, the governments of the republics of this hemisphere have been earnest advocates of the peaceful settlement of international disputes. The common purpose to eliminate war and the determination to achieve peace and security represent a major contribution of the Americas to modern civilization."

Heavy Obligations

"The full significance of this achievement is not always realized. For it carries with it heavy obligations to posterity. Future progress along these lines can only be assured through constant vigilance and by an unswerving determination to make the union of the American Republics, as now expressed in the Pan-American Union, an example to the world. We are not attempting in any way to develop a super-state, or to interfere with the freedom of action of any of the states, members of the union, but rather to develop an atmosphere of good will—a spirit of cooperation and mutual understanding—in which any difference that may arise, no matter how important, will find a ready solution."

"I cordially congratulate you, gentlemen of the Governing Board, on your happy initiative in establishing Pan-American Day, at the same time, I send a message of fraternal greeting, in the name of the people of the United States, to all the inhabitants of our sister republics."

Didn't Give a Hoot for Burglars!

A couple of hard-working burglars were just playing safe in Seattle, Wash., the other night. They'd heard that the safe was stuffed with currency. But when they finally crashed their way into the great iron box, they gazed owl-eyed, and let out a screech. This stuffed owl stared solemnly out at them, mocking their few stray dollars in loot.

WOMAN ORDERED OUT OF RUSSIA BECAUSE OF TALE

And Her American Husband Loses Fine Govt. Position

Berlin, Apr. 13—(AP)—An American woman's anecdote at the expense of Joseph Stalin, Russia's "man of steel," has cost her her right to live in the Soviet union and her husband his lucrative soviet employment as an anthracite mining expert.

Mrs. Eve Grady, an American magazine writer, arriving here from the U. S. S. R., said that a foreign office official had served her with expulsion papers, explaining that while her recent article, "See Russia and Die Laughing," was not offensive to the government, it could not allow the story about Stalin to go unnoted. At the same time her husband, William H. Grady, a consulting engineer of New York, was expelled with instructions to keep his wife out of Russia.

The anecdote to which objection was taken related that a Jewish boy saved a stranger from drowning, the grateful stranger telling him to ask anything he wished and it would be granted.

"I am powerful, I am Stalin," he was said to have remarked. The boy, quite overcome, gasped, and then said: "If you really are Mr. Stalin, don't tell anyone it was I who saved you."

Mrs. Grady said the story was going the rounds in Moscow.

NEWS OF THE CHURCHES

MEN'S CLUB TO MEET

The regular monthly meeting of the Men's club of the First Methodist church will be held this evening at 6.45. Earl Buck of Franklin Grove will speak on the subject, "The Pot of Gold at the End of the Rainbow."

CHRISTIAN CHURCH

The Woman's Missionary Society will direct the midweek worship, Wednesday evening, Friday evening at the church, 7.30, the Triangle Mission Club, Mrs. Glynn Allen, supervisor, will meet in the regular program.

Friends and former students of Mt. Morris college were grieved to learn of the college's heavy loss from Sunday morning's fire. But it is heartening to receive as the first reaction of the college leaders, that the work will continue. A week from last evening the Dixon Church of the Brethren and the Christian Church will join in presenting the Mt. Morris Women's Glee club in a full program at the Christian church. Prof. J. Leslie Pierce, voice instructor in the College and director of the club, speaks in highest confidence of the club and assures all that the program will be of excellent quality.

The church choir repeated their Easter cantata at the state hospital service, Sunday afternoon. Four members of the chorus were unavoidably absent; but to several from the church who heard both presentations, the harmonies were even more beautiful and the volume was splendidly adapted to the large hospital assembly hall.

Sublette Herd Of Holsteins Named

Arthur J. Leffelman, whose herd of purebred Holstein dairy cattle is well known in Sublette, has recently chosen a trade mark name to identify his herd, according to The Holstein-Friesian Association of America, which registered the name for the breeder. The name chosen as a part of the name of each individual animal in this herd is, "Leffelman."

All registered Holsteins have a name and number, the name usually indicating the ancestral blood lines. To identify these animals more closely with the farm where they were bred, the name usually begins with the prefix trade mark.

Of the 31,000 active members of The Holstein-Friesian Association of America, 9058 have registered these trade mark names that are now in regular use by Holstein breeders.

This prefix trade mark is registered by the Holstein-Friesian Association of America and is the exclusive property of the individual breeder. As to other trade marks, it has commercial value and when a buyer of Holsteins finds an outstanding cow of bull in his herd he can identify the original breeder, either by the prefix name or by the registration number and in that way can secure animals of the same breeding from the original owner or from neighbors using the same blood lines.

When Amelia Earhart Won New Laurels in Highest Autogiro Flight

Amelia Earhart set an altitude record for other autogiro pilots to shoot at when she flew this curious windmill plane an estimated three and one-half miles in the air over Pitsaen Field, near Philadelphia. Here you see the famed trans-Atlantic aviatrix in the cockpit of the odd plane as she landed after reaching an altitude of 18,500 feet—a record which she bettered by 500 feet on a second flight a few minutes later.

She had just made a new mark in the skies—an altitude record for autogiro planes—when this picture was taken of Amelia Earhart, first trans-Atlantic aviatrix, at Pitsaen Field, near Philadelphia. She is seen with the heavy sweater and flying suit which protected her against the cold air of high altitudes after she had piloted a "windmill" plane to an approximate height of 19,000 feet.

To Jail for 210 Years!

The next 210 years will be hardest for Paul Wupper, 54, left, who pleaded guilty to embezzling $1,000,000 from his bank at Beemer, Neb., and was sentenced on 20 counts for forgery. Shorty C. A. Haas, right, brought him from Philadelphia where he was arrested on a burglary charge. After Wupper was sentenced the judge asked him if he had anything to say. "I'm sorry," mumbled Wupper.

Enforcement Hits High Mark in March

Washington, Apr. 14—(AP)—A new high peak in federal prohibition enforcement with more arrests and more automobiles seized than in any similar period since July, was announced today by prohibition Director Woodcock for the month of March. With his field forces strengthened by approximately 200 new agents, Woodcock said the last month was "the best month the bureau has had since I took office nearly a year ago."

There were 5273 dry law arrests during March, the prohibition director said, as contrasted with 4181 for February. At the same time, he said, the seizure of automobiles jumped by 175 to a total of 719 for the month, and the granting of permanent injunctions increased 100 to 534.

"Notwithstanding this increased activity," he continued, "the courts more than kept up with us. There were 23,563 cases on the docket at the end of February and only 21,548 on April 1."

Meantime, Woodcock pushed plans for the assimilation into the federal dry force of the remainder of 500 new agents authorized by the last Congress.

IN POLICE COURT.

Charles Plein was assessed a fine of three dollars and costs by Justice J. O. Shaulls in police court last evening on a charge of assault and battery which was preferred by Joe E. Vale.

Howard Allshouse of this city was assessed a fine of $100 and costs by Justice J. O. Shaulls in police court yesterday afternoon on a charge of disorderly conduct and for failure to pay the amount was sent to the county jail.

Iowa Farmers Meet To Plan New Fight

Tipton, Iowa, April 14—(AP)—A mass meeting of objectors to the bovine tuberculin test law was called this morning at the William Butterbroodt farm near here to consider the report of representatives at Governor Dan Turner's Iowa City conference.

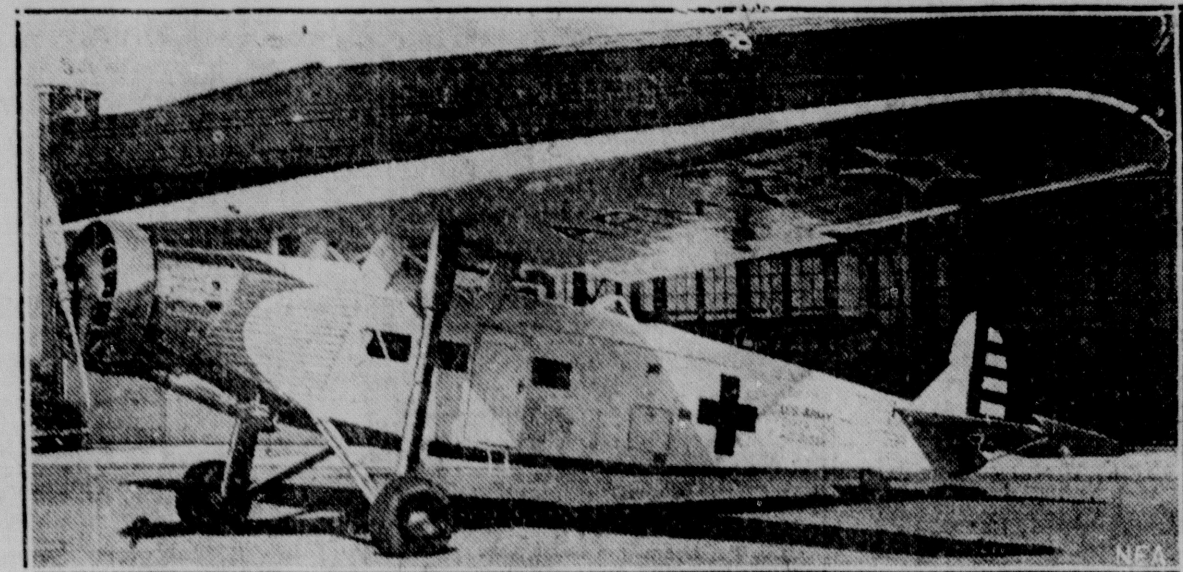

The meeting was expected to determine whether the protesting farmers, who last week clashed with state veterinarians, will permit the tests to continue.

Butterbroodt, it was said, is friendly with Milo Reno, past president of the Iowa Farmers Union who counseled the farmers at the Iowa City conference yesterday to obey the law.

Michael Arlen, the famous English novelist, once destroyed a manuscript of a novel representing a year of work. He simply didn't like the result.

The Army's First Flying Hospital

Here is the Army Air Corps' new flying hospital, the first plane to be built for strictly ambulance purposes. In addition to facilities for 12 patients, it is equipped to carry a doctor and attendant. The "nightingale of mercy" carries a complete set of surgeon's instruments, a drinking fountain, oxygen apparatus. It is painted white, with a red cross on each side of the fuselage.

SCORE OF BILLS IN LEGISLATURE AFFECT FARMING

All Are In Committee
Awaiting Report To Either Of Houses

Springfield, Ill., April 14 (AP)—Twenty bills directly affecting agriculture in the state have been introduced into the General Assembly and are now awaiting its action.

A bill introduced by Representative Roy A. Corzine, Republican, Stonington, chairman of the committee on agriculture in the House would provide that no one shall falsely brand any package or container required to be branded or shall remove or alter the package. It relates to inspection and standardization of farm products. The bill is ready for passage by the House, having been approved by the committee.

Two bills affecting cooperative organizations are before the House and both have been recommended for passage. One would permit the purchase of ten shares of stock instead of five by any person in relation to the General Cooperative Association act of 1915. Par value of stock would be $1,000 instead of $500. It would permit investment of surplus in other associations on a vote of a majority of the stockholders. The other bill would enlarge the scope of the association to include any corporation for production of agricultural products where the return of stock does not exceed eight per cent. Permission would be granted associations to engage in warehousing.

A bill introduced by Frederick Rinnick, Republican, Buda, would provide that no landlord of a farm shall be allowed to enforce a lien against the purchaser of any crop unless he has made final settlement for the crop. It is in the committee on judiciary.

A Senate bill would appropriate $200,000 to the Department of Agriculture for the erection of a 4-H club building at the State Fair. The appropriation committee now has this bill. Another Senate bill, introduced by Epler Mills, Republican, Virginia, would impose a tax of one-eighth of one cent on each bushel of grain contracted for future delivery. A dealer who fails to register with the Department of Agriculture for this purpose would be fined $1,000 or be imprisoned for not more than a year.

The Barr bill would provide regulations to prevent introduction into and dissemination within the state of insect pest and plant disease. D. Logan Griffin, Republican, Springfield introduced a bill in the House which would require persons purchasing live stock for shipment to keep records of each vehicle of less than 7,500 pounds shall pay the minimum fee of $12. The bill is now before the committee on roads and highway transportation.

The Hunter House bill exempting from motor license tax, threshers, well drilling outfits and other agricultural machinery, is now before the Senate having passed the House without difficulty. There is pending in the Senate a bill amending the license law by providing that this machinery be exempt from the act not only when used in behalf of the owner but also when used in behalf of others engaged in farming. It provides that vehicles of less than 7,500 pounds shall pay the minimum fee of $12. The bill is now before the committee on roads and highway transportation.

Temperatures For Brooders

By PROF. PAUL G. RILEY
It has been the experience of people who are operating battery brooders that a temperature of 85 degrees is warm enough for baby chicks.

The usual recommendation, where either coal or oil stoves are used in the brooder houses, is to start with a temperature of 85 degrees, with a thermometer hanging at the edge of the hover about two inches from the floor. This means that when the baby chicks go to bed at night, they are about a foot outside of the edge of the hover, because they will hunt the temperature in which they are comfortable.

As they get older, chicks need less heat, and the temperature of the stove should be reduced so that the inner edge of the circle of chicks will continue to stay about a foot away from the edge of the hover. It is not possible to give definite temperatures, because it is necessary that the caretaker watch the chicks and reduce the temperature of the stove so that these chicks don't form the habit of sleeping too far away.

If the temperature is kept too high, the chicks will keep backing up until they get into the corners of the house, and then they start piling. Once the chicks are either too hot or too cold, they are almost sure to have trouble with growing, with consequent poor feathering, slow growth and often heavy mortality.

Incorrect temperatures are the most likely cause of chicks piling up.

W. F. PRIEBE'S WEEKLY LETTER to POULTRY RAISERS

I found an article in the newspaper the other morning and when I read it I just hoped that you would see it, too. But for fear you'd miss it I tore it out and put it in my vest pocket, thinking I'd write you about it this week.

It's from Washington, D. C., and this is what it says:

"After six months of steadily declining prices of farm products, the Department of Agriculture noted a slight increase in the general level from Feb. 15 to March 15, and regarded it as 'encouraging'."

"Higher prices during the month's period this year were reported on eggs, chickens—"

And I stopped right there to think that you'd be as interested as I was to see eggs and chickens at the head of the list. The article went on to say that what is called "the price index" for poultry and poultry products had advanced 13 points during the month, and grains had declined 1 point.

"That means that I was right when I told you about a month ago that you would get considerably more for your grain if you fed it to your chickens and let them turn it into eggs."

You know I've been watching the price on poultry and eggs go up and down for about fifty-eight years now. Every time the price has changed the first question I have asked myself is, Why? And this is why I think the price has gone up now.

When eggs and poultry got so cheap last winter people began buying a lot more of them. When the demand started to increase, the price began to get better.

People are eating a lot of chickens and a lot of eggs. They have eaten up last year's surplus of storage eggs. They have eaten chicken until there is actually a shortage of poultry in storage.

At the same time farmers have been selling off a lot of their hens and aren't starting as many chicks as usual. With consumers eating more poultry and eggs and most farmers producing less, I think we ought to have good prices this fall. What do you think?

I don't think they will be extremely high, but I do think they will be satisfactory. So I believe that you farmers who are raising as many chickens as you have room for are wise. And if you manage your flock properly I think you will make money.

Keep in mind that a hen is an egg factory and that the quality of the product—the size of the egg, the thickness of the shell, the interior quality—depends upon the raw materials which you put into this factory. So feed your chickens well.

You know that your success as a poultry raiser depends on your producing the kind of products the consumers want. And they want poultry and eggs of good quality.

Yours truly
W. F. Priebe

Weekly Review of Agriculture by Farmers Paper

Chicago, Ill.—Prices received by farmers in March increased one point over February, after declining each month since last September, the Prairie Farmer's market review said. Broadly speaking, industry is still traveling in decidedly low gear, with prospects that it will not shift to intermediate speed for several months yet and farm prices will lag in the interim.

"Two weeks of heavy receipts of cattle late in March," the review said, "forced prices for some of the better kinds of steers to new low levels for the year and the lowest since 1922, but undergrade steers and most butcher cows and heifers held about half their gains since late in February. Besides liberal receipts, the market was weakened by Hebrew holidays, and slow dressed trade generally. At this time it seems unwise to expect much strength in the fat steer market in the next two months. Prices of thin cattle have held most of their gains and look quite high when compared with prices for fat cattle. Fat cattle are $4 lower than a year ago but thin steers are down only $3.

"Hog prices are still on the higher level attained in late winter although they are about 50 cents below the peak day in mid-March, and rallies do not hold well. While in the past year suggests steady to lower prices in the next two months, sentiment in the future trade seems to indicate that higher prices are ahead."

"Extremely light receipts in April coupled with pre-Easter demand put fat lamb prices at Chicago to a new high for the season by a slight margin. Native springers weighing 30 to 35 pounds sold at $13 to $18 for the 'Greek' trade. The market probably will continue erratic in the next month or two, with uneven distribution of receipts and increasing supplies of springers gradually taking the place of fed lambs. Domestic wool prices are generally strong."

"The Stabilization Corporation expects to advance prices on its holdings of wheat up to the end of June, and prices to producers for old crop wheat probably will be governed accordingly. But, a substantially lower scale is in prospect for the new crop, unless the new crop in important wheat areas is affected adversely."

"Feed grain prices have been weak under speculative pressure associated with a slow cash demand. A stronger market for these grains, especially corn, seems likely to develop within 30 days."

"Red clover seed prices continue to decline. Other seeds are holding fairly steady."

"Receipts of eggs are holding up. Higher prices in the country probably have induced the farmers to curtail their consumption of eggs and mild weather has stimulated continued heavy lay. Prices seem to be stabilizing and not much of a change is expected during the next month. Hatcheries have increased their operations, absorbing more of the finer eggs."

"The butter market has been unsettled by increasing receipts. Prices have declined during the past week, but seem to have steadied again and many believe that the market is not much, if any, above the level which will prevail during the period of heavy production."

ILLINOIS CATTLEMEN SIGN PACT FOR FEED ECONOMY

Springfield, Ill. (AP)—Continued low livestock markets have convinced Illinois cattlemen that if they cannot get a higher price for their steers they will have to try for profits by reducing feed costs.

More than 400 of them have signed an honor roll to practice economy in their choice of feeds. Legume hay and pasture will be supplemented with feeds having a low cost for each pound of protein.

E. T. Robins, University of Illinois estimates the program will save from $9.50 to $10. on each steer.

There is nothing quite as attractive for the pantry shelves as our pink, yellow, blue or green paper. Rolls from 10c to 50c. B. F. Shaw Printing Co. Printers for over 80 years.

The Two Worst Chicken Thieves We Know—Are Disease and Parasite—(LICE and MITES)

Every year they steal more chickens from farmers than robbers do. But it's easier to protect your flock against them. SANITATION is the best protection. Keep everything clean!

Disinfect your hen house and your brooder houses often. Delouse your birds. Raise the young chicks separate from your mature flock.

And provide fresh, clean range for your chickens every year. The ground on which you raised your birds last year cannot help but be infested. Do not expose healthy young stock to any disease your birds may have had in past years.

Give your chicks a chance to grow into healthy birds. And if you do have any trouble, remember that our service man is always glad to help you. Call him at once. Our phone number is 116.

PACKERS AWAIT NEW RULING ON GROCERY TRADE

A Recent Modification of Consent Decree Is Giving Trouble

By FRANK I. WELLER
(Associated Press Farm Editor)
Washington (AP)—Modification of the celebrated "packers' consent decree" has been a troublesome bee in the bonnet of the "big four"—Armour & Company, Swift & Company, Wilson & Company and The Cudahy Packing Company.

The District of Columbia supreme court scarcely had permitted the packers to handle groceries along with meat and meat products when the department of justice announced intention to appeal the district court's ruling to the supreme court of the United States.

Meantime, the packers are wondering whether to engage in the new field opened to them, or limit themselves to meat alone, as required under original terms of the consent decree.

No one seems to know exactly why the appeal is to be taken.

All effort is being made to expedite the new action, but it is not expected to reach the court before its October term.

The packers have the right to engage in the wholesale transportation and sale of groceries regardless, but it is learned from semi-official sources that they likely will not establish any important trade relations in groceries until the case finally is settled. Their operations thus far under the modification order are said to be limited.

The National farm organizations which supported the demand for modification, believe that the vast purchasing power of the "big four" packers will open a new market for farm produce, increase the competition for it, and result in higher prices to the producer.

FERTILIZER OF GREAT BENEFIT TO APPLE CROP

Expense Of 15 Or 20
Cents Per Tree Is Good Investment

Urbana, Ill. (AP)—Commercial fertilizers applied in the spring to supply bearing apple trees with needed nitrogen may increase the efficiency of yields as much as six to nine bushels of fruit to a tree at a cost of no more than 15 to 20 cents, according to R. S. Marsh, horticultural extension specialist of the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.

Results as striking as this were obtained last year in experiments which the college made in an orchard of 31 year old winesap trees growing in bluegrass sod in Calhoun county, he reported. It was the fifth season of fertilizers treatment in the orchard.

Untreated trees yielded an average of 13 bushels of fruit an acre, while those given six pounds of nitrate of soda yielded an average of 22 bushels. Ammonium sulphate, calcium cyanamide and a commercial product gave increases almost as large as this.

In the past decade, since commercial forms of quickly available nitrogenous fertilizers have been used in sod mulch apple orchards, this system of soil management has been the most practical one to use in thousands of orchards, Marsh said.

Such fertilizers are applied about two weeks before bloom at the rate of one-fourth pound for each year of the tree's age. This system has been found profitable on apple, peaches, cherries, plums and bramble fruits. The fertilizers are broadcast under the branches of the trees or used as side dressing for bramble fruits.

It is not necessary to cultivate them into the soil, as the first shower dissolves and leaches them into the ground.

"This system of soil management eliminates the cost of frequent cultivation and prevents erosion of soil on rolling ground. However, shallow discing is advised every two or three years and a legume should be used as the sod crop. Also in some sections of Illinois, orchards can not be seeded down to a soil-building crop or sod before they are five or six years old because of the danger of injury to young apple trees from the buffalo tree hopper."

To prevent such injury it is necessary to cultivate young orchards in western and northern Illinois during May and June. Orchards south of St. Louis and Olney are not bothered to any great extent by the buffalo tree hopper.

D. H. S. Chapter

By DONALD SWEGLE

Illinois now produces only about one-fourth of the potatoes she uses, but with better cultural practices could very profitably grow more of them, according to College of Agriculture, University of Illinois. The three outstanding barriers to better potato production in Illinois are poor seed, poor soil and failure to control insect and disease enemies of the crop. It is suggested that northern grown seed, either of the Irish cobble or Early Ohio varieties be used and where possible, certified seed be planted.

Barnyard Manure the Best Fertilizer
Potatoes are adapted to a rich, sandy loam and do poorly on sand and on stiff clay loam. Barnyard manure applied to a good potato soil has given the most consistent and highest increases of any fertilizer used in experiments.

Limestone Not Needed
Potatoes do not do well on acid soil as on a sweet soil. However, soils that are low in phosphorus will respond well to addition of this element in an available form. Only on peaty soils or the poorer sandy soils will potash give marked increases in yield of potatoes.

Spray for Insects and Diseases
Yields have been increased from 33 percent to 100 percent where Bordeaux mixture and arsenate of lead have been used to control insects and diseases. Spraying should be started

Farming Factors

By RONALD VAN TINE

(Associated Press Farm Editor)

Washington (UP)—The destructive drought of last year impoverished thousands of fruit trees in many sections of the country.

Growers, therefore, are urged to make early and somewhat heavier applications of nitrogen fertilizer this spring to stimulate the fruit buds. Trees last year were unable to store up the usual amounts of starches, sugars and other food materials on which early growth depends, and the buds in many orchards are small.

The leaves are formed largely during the first two months of their growth. In these leaves the food materials that form the fruit are manufactured during the summer. Consequently, it is necessary to build up a large leaf system so the trees will be able to develop a large crop of fruit.

In the Shenandoah and Potomac valleys, the Mississippi Valley, the Ohio Valley and southern Pennsylvania—the worst of the drought stricken areas—the majority of the apple orchards normally come into bloom in late April or early May. If possible, fertilizer should be applied a month ahead of the bloom. Nitrogen in a quickly available form is recommended.

Applications this spring should be from 20 to 25 per cent heavier to make up for the lack of food stored in trees last year.

If the weather remains dry this spring, it will be advantageous to break up the sod, putting the orchard back into sod later when rainfall becomes more satisfactory.

This year the subsoil is very dry and is not likely to get soaked up properly unless there is an abnormal as soon as potatoes are six or eight inches high and be continued for four or five weeks at weekly intervals. Arsenate of lead should only be used when chewing insects like the Colorado potato beetle are present. Bordeaux mixture, however, should be included in each application of spray or dust. It is highly important that the under side of the leaves be sprayed as well as the surface.

mally favorable spring and summer rainfall.

Egg production per farm flock during the first three months of this year has increased markedly over the corresponding period a year ago. This increase was brought about despite a sharp reduction in the number of hens and pullets of laying age.

Prenatal Anemia Hit Spring Pigs

Urbana, Ill., April 14—(UP)—Prenatal anemia believed to have been caused by the shortage of pastures for breeding sows during the late summer, fall and winter, as a result of the drought was blamed for the unusually heavy mortality among spring pigs in a statement here today by Dr. Robert Graham, chief in animal pathology at the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.

As a precaution against further losses Graham recommended that sows yet to farrow be kept on pasture.

If anemia threaten in pigs that are two to three weeks of age and they get chuffy, fat and lazy, it will be advisable to get them on the ground, he said. If weather prevents this the next best thing will be to get clean dirt and sod from a place where hogs have not been kept and put in pens where pigs are confined.

"Although anemia has been seen in newly born pigs for a number of years it never before has been common enough to be a serious economic problem," Graham said. "In the recent losses reported to the college, health appearing sows farrowed pigs that seemed normal for about 24 hours only to sicken and die in two to four days."

MAD MARRIAGE

LAURA LOU BROOKMAN

BEGIN HERE TODAY
GYPSY McHURD, 10-year-old New York tycoon, marries JIM WALLACE the day after she meets him at the home of her wealthy cousin, ANNE TROWBRIDGE. Gypsy has been killed by ALAN CROSBY, just returned from a year and a half in Paris studying art, and Wallace's fiancée had broken their engagement to marry a wealthier man.

Jim and Gypsy go to Forest City where Jim has a thriving law practice. His relatives, particularly AUNT ELLEN, who has kept house for him, are hostile to Gypsy. They snub her. Aunt Ellen moves to a cottage of her own. Alan Crosby visits to Gypsy but she returns the letter unanswered.

MARCIA LORING, Jim's former fiancée, marries BRUCE PHILLIPS, millionaire's son.

Months pass and news comes that Bruce Phillips has been killed in a fall from a horse. Marcia returns to her home.

When he asks her to go with him to call on Marcia and she refuses, Jim goes alone and later Gypsy meets Marcia at a benefit garden party. She dislikes her instinctively. Marcia consults Jim about her financial affairs and later tells him her marriage to Phillips was a mistake. Jim tries to remain loyal to Gypsy but sees Marcia frequently. One evening Gypsy sees him going to the cottage where Marcia lives. Later Jim makes the excuse of working late at the office.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXXVI

JIM WALLACE did leave the house that night but whether or not he went to the office Gypsy never knew. They had scarcely finished dinner when the telephone rang. Jim went to answer and returned in a moment.

"It's Mills," he said. "Wants me to come right down. Hope you don't mind being alone."

"Not at all. I'll be right."

"Well, I'll try not to be gone long but don't wait for me."

She said goodby and Jim disappeared. Gypsy left the dining room and walked out on the porch and there was a full moon lighting the garden and under its mellow glow the place took on new enchantment. Low hedges cast enormous black shadows. The sundial was a gleaming spire of pure white. Crickets were chirping and faintly in the distance she heard the hoot of an owl. The breeze carried mingled perfume of a dozen different flowers.

A porch swing that creaked in motion stood in the corner. Gypsy sank to its cushions, staring off across the garden. It was as well to be alone, she thought. There was so much to be settled.

She rocked gently, touching one foot to the floor. Then, annoyed by the noise of the swing, she stopped. Marcia was here and Jim was in love with her. Those were the facts. What in those circumstances should Gypsy, who was his wife, do? It was not the usual triangle. This was different. She had never had the slightest claim on Jim's affections. There had been occasions when she thought he cared for her but all that had nothing to do with his devotion to Marcia. Now Marcia was back!

Should she go away? Leave a message and depart—even tonight before he came home? That was a possibility.

Gypsy considered this. She would have to go some place where Jim could not find her. Go away? The garden—her garden in which she had worked such long hours—seemed to call to her. This house she had striven to make into a home suddenly became doubly precious. Pat, the fox terrier, wandered across the porch floor and hopped up into the swing beside her. The dog nestled his nose against her arm.

"What shall I do, Pat?" the girl whispered tensely. "What shall I do?"

She knew she could not go away that evening. Her resentment against Marcia Phillips welled in the girl's heart. Marcia with her beauty—her money, and her cruel, arrogant lips. Why did it have to be Marcia to whom Jim had lost his heart?

"If I only knew she didn't intend to hurt him," Gypsy told herself. "I'd go away. If it were anyone else but Marcia I'd leave. Oh, Jim, can't you see she's deceitful? You learned what she is once! Isn't that enough? Must you let her break your heart a second time?"

The fragrant wind from the garden had no answer.

For a long time she stared out at the moonlight. There was an angle to the problem which the girl realized only subconsciously. With Marcia Phillips on the scene Jim Wallace—kind, generous and considerate—suddenly became more desirable. Many of Jim's good qualities Gypsy had accepted without a thought. There had always been the contrast in her mind between good-natured, sturdy Jim and Alan Crosby, handsome and temperamental. Jim had never taken Alan's place. Now she was amazed to find Jim had a place of his own. She did not want to give him up to Marcia Phillips.

The moon rose higher in the sky. Shrubbery that had been in shadow suddenly emerged. The sundial that had glinted like ivory was lost to view. The house was perfectly quiet when at last Gypsy left the swing. It was 10:30 when she sent Pat to his bed for the night, made the rounds of the doors to see that all except the front ones was bolted and then went to her room.

She had settled on a waiting policy but the plan seemed hopeless. Daily she felt the rift between her self and Jim becoming wider.

Whenever he telephoned that he would be delayed, whenever he left for the evening Gypsy wondered if he were spending the time with Marcia. She stayed away from the cottage at the end of the block but one day, in spite of her precautions, she saw Marcia.

Gypsy had come from the garden. She had been helping Sam transplant a row of phlox and her coat and dress, her bare arms and even her face were grimy. Sam led her around the house to have a look at the hole he had discovered in the hedge. Sam declared small boys were responsible.

"Oh," Gypsy exclaimed as they reached the front yard, "I didn't realize it was down there!"

Conscious of her disgraceful appearance she nevertheless followed the gardener. The hole was in the front hedge, half way between the entrance and the corner. Gypsy got down on her knees to inspect it.

"What are you going to do?" she asked.

"Fasten it up with wire!" Sam said staunchly. "I'll teach the little beggars to burrow into this hedge!"

Sam mumbled on belligerently. Gypsy rose to her feet. As she did so she heard a voice saying sweetly, "How do you do, Mrs. Wallace?"

The girl turned. Marcia Phillips and a girl whom Gypsy did not know were approaching. Marcia was dressed in lavender organdie, a broad-brimmed straw picture hat trimmed with lavender ribbon on her head. The other girl was in white. Both looked delightfully cool and fresh. The lavender gown for all its simplicity had lines marking it with an unmistakable Fifth Avenue stamp. Marcia was smiling.

Gypsy's cheeks crimsoned. She could feel the smudges on her face and arms. In imagination they magnified.

"Oh—good morning," she managed to say. "I've been gardening."

Marcia's laugh was a low trill. "How nice!" she said. "Such a beautiful morning for it. Come and see me some time!"

The two girls passed on. Gypsy watched them. A slow, steady fire began to smolder in the girl's heart. "I hate her!" Gypsy told herself. "I hate her! I hate her!"

Then she hurried back to the house. She did not emerge until she had bathed and put on a clean frock.

That same evening the opportunity arrived that Gypsy had been looking for. She had decided affairs could not go on as they had been. When they left the table he went out on the porch and presently Gypsy followed.

Jim was sitting in the swing smoking. Night had not fallen yet but all about was gray twilight. The tip of his cigaret glowed red in the dusk. Gypsy sat down beside him.

She hesitated, wondering how to begin. "Jim," she said after a few moments, "I don't believe you're feeling very well lately. Is it because you've been working too hard?"

"Nothing wrong with me."

"I'm sure there is. I can see it. Is it anything you're worried about?"

"Must be your imagination," Jim answered. "I'm all right."

"But you do look worried so much of the time. If there's anything gone wrong I wish you'd tell me about it. Maybe it would help."

He moved as though annoyed. "There's nothing to tell," he said, and that ended the discussion.

Presently she tried again. This time she did so openly. "You know," she said slowly, "one time you asked me if I'd ever regretted our marriage. Do you remember?"

It was too dark for her to see Jim's eyes. His answer was a monosyllable. "Yes."

"And I asked you the same thing and you told me 'no.' That was almost a month ago."

There was a pause. "If you—ever feel differently I want you to tell me, Jim

FEW ILLINOIS FARMERS HAVE ROTATION PLAN

Genuine Crop Rotation In This State Held To Be Very Rare

Urbana, Ill. —(UP)—Rotation of crops on Illinois farms is rare despite its proven value as a means of increasing profit, according to R. R. Hudelson, extension specialist in farm organization and management at the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.

Although in recent years there has been much talk of crop rotation, Hudelson said little had been done by the farmers. He blamed the fact that the rotation of crops require planning ahead which is altogether uncommon especially on farms with year leases, as one of the most important causes for their shortness. Another reason for this, he said, given by Hudelson, is that rotation can not be kept up because such crops as clover and winter wheat often fail. Hudelson pointed out, however, that most farms earning more than the average have a definite plan of rotation. In this period of low prices, he said, they might be used for farmers to promote systematic, efficient, low-cost production.

"Many consistently successful Illinois farmers maintain rotations in spite of these drawbacks," said Hudelson. "There is one successful farm in east central Illinois, for instance, on which a five year rotation of corn, oats, wheat and clover has been maintained for 16 years. Wheat and clover failure have not happened often because the soil has been kept with a good supply of organic matter, nitrogen and lime so that the weather has to be severe to kill a crop."

"Failures which have occurred about once every five years did not break up the rotation plans because other plans already had been laid for such an emergency. Oats were substituted for wheat sowing as a nurse crop for clover which thus came right back to its place in the rotation."

"The clover and timothy had not failed completely until 1930, but the plan followed when either a partial or complete failure of this crop took place was to disk into the field in early spring a mixture of oats and clover."

"This supplied pasture although not as early nor as abundant as the second year clover when it was available. It has served the purpose, however, and can be followed by corn without breaking up the crop rotation."

Daily Health Talk

By DR. MORRIS FISHEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

In times of economic depression when many people are without income from work, it becomes necessary to establish bread lines in order to provide them with food and what are technically known as "lop houses" as a place of shelter. For years the standard diet in the bread line has been coffee and sinkers. Unfortunately this is in no sense of the word a competent diet. Although a human being can live on a diet of coffee and sinkers for some time, he begins promptly to develop the symptoms of deficiency of some of the vitamins.

Thus it is already reported from several metropolitan centers that the inhabitants of Hobohemia are appearing in the clinics with early manifestations of scurvy and of pellagra.

As has been known for several years, a diet which is largely deficient in vitamin C leads to the manifestations of scurvy. A diet that is deficient in one of the portions of vitamin B leads promptly to the manifestations of pellagra.

If the standard coffee and sinkers could be replaced by a thick vegetable soup and a certain amount of fresh fruit or leafy green vegetables, if the coffee could be replaced by at least a half pint of milk, many of these disturbances would be avoided. Unfortunately the members of the bread line have learned to love their coffee and sinkers. They like the stimulation of the coffee, and the sweet taste and the filling effects of the doughnuts. Whether or not they can be educated to eat the more sufficient foods that have been mentioned is a problem for the social workers who are concerned largely with the care of the unfortunate. Here is certainly some evidence that an apple a day or an orange a day will do much to keep the doctor away.

B. H. BROILES, EDITOR OF THE MEXIA (TEXAS) NEWS, SAYS:

"THAT a broom, a paint brush, a fresh stock of quality goods and a stick of advertising type will do more in any man's town toward extending trade territory and developing new business than a dozen buy-at-home campaigns."

We have slackened our American initiative. Instead of going after new business and new friends, we have sought to rest while curbing our competitors. We have tariffs, embargoes, boycotts—expressions of weakness—and we also have buy-at-home campaigns primarily to get customers NOT to trade at some other place.

Clean stores, clean stocks, sold by clean people will attract.

One paint-up campaign is worth a dozen trade-at-home campaigns.

Business which advertise consistently, intelligently and honestly profit most.

We need to forget the negative methods of business—tariffs, embargo, boycott, trade-at-home—and renew our positive methods of American salesmanship, workmanship, efficiency and advertising. Making friends for ourselves does not mean making enemies for the other fellow.
